WHY A CRUTIC WAS DISPLEASED WITH MIS GHANGER

WHY A CHITIC WAS DISPLEASED WITH MISS GHANGER.

The following was published in a city paper yesterday morning as a criticism of Miss Granger as Cumille. Persons who have witnessed Miss Granger in that part will see that the article is both utiputs and unkind:
Miss Maud Granger appeared last hight as Gmille, a role made famous by Madiba Heron and Clara Morris. Announcements had been made of her profelentery in the part, and, the public were led to expect a resultion that would at least be respectable but they were disappointed. The acting of Miss Granger was tame, and showed neither natural ability nor attainment of any artistic kind.
Miss Granger was tame, and showed neither natural ability nor attainment of any artistic kind.
Miss Granger was time, and showed neither natural ability to retain ment of any artistic kind.
Miss Granger appears to belong to a school which essays the high art of the profession without having mastered the elementary rudinemts. She possesses qualities which, with time and study, will probably make of her a good actress, but at pressing the birt from occupying such a position.
When it is not the profession without having mastered the elementary rudinemts. THE ATLANTIC

By Associated Fyrax.

WILMINGTON, DEL., Sept. 18.

Last Friday evening, at 5 o'clock, Captain Joe Burris, a pilot, while on a cruise south of Maria bar, and when off Lockwood's Felly, in Brunswick county, about twenty miles south of Cape Fear, fell in with a fore-and-aft
schooner named the Jonas Smith, and halling from some foreign port. Some of her sails had been blown entirely away, while others hung in ahreds from the masts, only a few being at all surviceable. Near the water line weeds and grass a foot long were growing from the hull, evidencing that she had been a long time out of port.

evidencing that she had been a long time out of port.

Captain Burris counted on her deck one white man and thirteen negroes, the latter of whom did all the talking. They claimed to be from Beston, bound for Savannah, with a full carpo, but of what was not ascertained, and said that they had been out but three weeks. They had entirely least their bearings, did not know where they were nor how Charleston or Savannah bore. Captain Burris gave them the bearings, when the vessel sailed off to the south. As she did so the white man, who was standir, at the stern, turned his back to the colored crew and beekoned and entreated with his hand for Captain Burris to return, and was in that position as long as he could be seen from the deck of the pilot boat.
